UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

8 | UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, No. CR-12-0483 EMC

9 Plaintiff,

V.

11 MANDY NATCHI YAGI and PETER WONG,

Defendants.

ORDER RE CHALLENGED EXHIBITS

On October 23, 2013, Defendants objected to government exhibits 90 through 186C on the ground that the challenged exhibits either (1) fell outside the scope of the conspiracy or (2) consisted of items for which the government had not laid a proper foundation to show that they were misappropriated items.

19 On October 30, 2013, this Court issued an order overruling defendant's objections to those 20 exhibits for which the government's offer of proof demonstrated that the item related to an estate that 21 was either still open or closed after 2008 or was expressly referenced in the indictment. For those
22 items tied to a pre-2008 estate or which contained no indicia of belonging to an estate, the Court
23 indicated that it was inclined to revisit its Rule 404(b) ruling, but reserved its ruling until it had 24 reviewed the response from Defendants. Defendant Yagi responded, and the Court rules as follows.

25 The Court finds that those exhibits which the government's offer of proof shows are part of 26 an estate, even one which "closed" prior to 2008, are admissible under Rule 404(b). As stated in its 27 October 30, 2013 order, the Court finds that the government's July 15, 2013 letter to defense counsel
28 constitutes "reasonable notice" as to these exhibits. Further, the Court finds that the items (1) are

1 relevant to a material issue in this case—specifically Defendants' intent; (2) are not too remote in
2 time so as to be irrelevant; and (3) implicate conduct similar to the offenses charged in the 3 indictment. See, e.g., United States v. Chaudhry, No. C 03-40210 SBA, 2008 WL 2128197, at *4-5
4 (N.D. Cal. May 20, 2008). Defendant's argument that the items are not relevant because of the 5 significance (or lack thereof) of an estate being "closed," the issue of "after acquired property," and 6 the like, are arguments the Defendants can make to the jury. In short, these arguments go to the 7 weight the jury should give the exhibits, not their admissibility.

8 On the other hand, the Court finds that those items, seized from Defendants' home or vehicle,
9 for which the government's offer of proof shows no connection to an estate will not be admitted.
10 The Court finds the government has not provided a sufficient foundation for such exhibits.

11 For purposes of clarity, between this order, the Court's October 28, 2013 order, and the 12 Court's October 30, 2013 order, the Court rules on Defendants' objection to Exhibits 90 through 13 Exhibit 186C as follows: Defendants objections are SUSTAINED as to 92, 94, 96, 97, 105, 107,
14 109, 110, 112, 119, 120, 121, and 121A. They are OVERRULED as to the remaining exhibits.

16 IT IS SO ORDERED.
